Home Support Worker Program

Mount Saint Joseph is now registered with the province of New Brunswick as Private Occupational Training facility, and will be offering its first Home Support Worker Program.

This unique course is for people who are seeking employment or are already employed in a care giving position and want to become certified. It prepares students to work as part of an Adult Residential team in providing safe, competent care to the frail elderly and other vulnerable populations in a community setting.

The Mount Saint Joseph Home Support Worker Program is a 6 week program, delivered through 240 hours of traditional classroom instruction, and clinical demonstrations.

Students will receive a certificate upon successful completion of the course.

Tuition for the Mount Saint Joseph Home Support Worker Program is $2,000. This includes the Student Protection Fee required by the province. It does not cover the costs for books and other incidental fees (approximately $200).

It is the student's responsibility to explore their eligibility for any available training funding through the province.

All students must have a criminal background clearance to work with vulnerable populations.

Seats for this program will be limited and acceptance is at the discretion of Mount Saint Joseph. The course will start on Monday, October 5, 2020.
